

Chapter 6

Pig and Pepper

FOR a minute or two she stood looking at the house, and wondering what to do next, when suddenly a footman in livery came running out of the wood—(she considered him to be a footman because he was in livery: otherwise, judging by his face only, she would have called him a fish)—and rapped loudly at the door with his knuckles. It was opened by another footman in livery, with a round face, and large eyes like a frog; and both footmen, Alice noticed, had powdered hair that curled all over their heads. She felt very curious to know what it was all way out of the wood to

PIG AND

The Fish-Footman be under his arm a great l himself, and this he hand ing, in a solemn tone, invitation from the Queen Frog-Footman repeated, i only changing the order “From the Queen. An in to play croquet.”

Then they both bowed entangled together.

Alice laughed so much run back into the wood f her; and, when she next Footman was gone, and t the ground near the door, the sky.

Alice went timidly up to “There’s no sort of use Footman, “and that for t cause I’m on the same si are: secondly, because they inside, no one could possib tainly there was a most ext